Ski you later, Iceland.

FJORD OF ICES, LAND OF VOLCANOES

Finding uncharted lines in between volcanoes and skiing down to the sea.

For this ski touring adventure, we take full advantage of the breathtaking variety of Icelandic mountain scenery.

To find lines that fit our skiing style, we are betting on the Westfjords peninsula and Troll peninsula in the North of Iceland. With every peak, the skiing objective gets more challenging and, at the same time, more rewarding.

All this encapsulated in a ten days adventure with our pulkas, skis and expedition tent.

North Iceland

MARCH 2-12, 2023

A total of 10 days of skiing where we want to take the most out of Iceland's hidden gems.

Lambahnjúkur, Sveitarfélagið Skagafjörður

No name peak, Lambahnjúkur

We move then to the North of Iceland (6h transit), where the ski area of Siglufjörður will be a starting point for many more lines that we want to draw. A few of those will require to establishing base camps before reaching them after 1-2 days of touring.

Sauratindar, Westfjords, Ísafjörður

Vedrarárfjall, Westfjords

From Reykjavík, we rent a mini-bus to head towards the Westfjords (5h transit), where we've spotted a few uncharted couloirs. With our pulkas, touring and camping equipment, we can reach remote places inaccessible by car otherwise.

What is needed ?

- 2-3 pulkas
- Expedition tent
- Extreme cold camping gear (mattress, down sleeping bag,...)
- Ski equipment
- Video equipment
- Food

N-E peak next to Audnahyrna, Fjarðabyggð

Born with skis, this guy is hitting slopes harder than an icebreaker. No mountains is too steep for him. Born ready.

Anastasia

Being a firefighter and mountain climber, who could think of a better combo to ski Iceland?! Always getting sparkles in the eyes when it talks about mountains.

John

True adventurer and explorer, you know you can always call John if you want to mess around with mountains...He's never too far from them...

Michiel

Got addicted to skiing when he was young, and since then, cannot stop cruising through that white powder apparently.

Life is too short to ski boring mountains
